Dear Parent/Carer,

Update to our privacy notices

As you will have no doubt have read or heard about, the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) came into force today, Friday 25 May 2018. We have updated our privacy notices accordingly, which is all part of our commitment to compliance and protecting your personal information.

What's changed?

We're not changing how we use or collect your information. Rather, our updated privacy notice more clearly explains how, why, where and when we store and process your data, and also reflects your rights under the GDPR.

You can view our privacy notices and related policies on the Diverse Academies website.

You may recall that previously, consent was sought for the publication of photographs, along with other areas of data collection. If you (in discussion with your child) wish to change the consent in the future you are at liberty to do so at any stage by contacting the academy. We will issue a new consent form for you and your child to complete on request. You can view our photography and videography policy online.
